Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: the claimed invention read on the structure of the combined teaching of references of Igarashi et al and Kitahara. For example, Applicant argued that Igarashi et al does not disclose an integrated circuit die is directly attached to a single solder layer. In response, the examiner disagrees with applicant's argument because figure 9 of Igarashi et al clearly discloses a die (comprising elements 19 and 11A) is attached to a single solder layer (13) on the substrate (12). Igarashi et al does not disclose the substrate is a foil sheet. However, Kitahara discloses in figure 1-2 an apparatus comprising a die (120) is attached to the foil sheet ("lead" 3). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the apparatus of Igarashi et al by substitute the substrate of Igarashi et al with the foil sheet (lead 3) as taught by Kitahara for supporting the chip/die and providing an easy cut to the substrate/sheet. Claim 1 does not disclose the die is a single die and is directly attached to the single layer of solder. Therefore, claim 1 is broadly read on the structure of the combined teaching of the references of Igarashi et al and Kitahara. Lead 3 of Kitahara has the same function as that of "foil sheet" of the invention because lead 3 is also flexible and cuttable.
